

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display controlling apparatus of the present invention is for controlling a display apparatus which displays TV program information, and comprises

5 receiving means for receiving program information on a plurality of programs, display control means for controlling so as to display first program information on the plurality of programs on the basis of the program information received by the receiving means on

10 display means, and selection means for selecting first program information relating to an arbitrary program in the first program information displayed on the display means, wherein the display control means is constructed so as to control so as to display second program

15 information on a program relating to the first program information selected by the selection means, and controls so as to display the second program information on a plurality of the selected programs.